

AIDS Calgary is Moving

Larger location offers increased capacity for serving the community

Calgary, Alberta - As of November 1, 2007, AIDS Calgary's new address will be 110, 1603 10th Avenue SW, T3C 0J7. After developing and delivering programs and services for several years at our current location (200, 1509 Centre Street South), our lease has expired and the option to continue in the current space was not available. Therefore we will be moving to an exciting new location.

The new space is in a non-profit complex, which will provide a welcoming environment for both our agency and clients. AIDS Calgary will occupy second floor office space, in addition we will also occupy street level space. We will share the building with Aboriginal Resource Centre and Awo-Taan Family Centre.

By having street level access, we can enhance our services to those living with and at risk for HIV. The store front level will be referred to as the Calgary Cares Centre and will operate as a core program of AIDS Calgary, providing outreach and support services to the Calgary community. The exterior of the building will clearly display the name Calgary Cares Centre. This specific branding is designed to reduce barriers and allow those individuals and communities who may find the term AIDS stigmatizing, more comfortable access to AIDS Calgary's services and programming. Securing a location with both street level access and the opportunity to create the Calgary Cares Centre have been target goals of AIDS Calgary.
